Our integration testing will be a bottom up approach. We will test each individual class before attempting to utilize it to test further classes. As much of our system could be modeled as a straight flow and translation of information, this testing lends itself easily. We will begin with connection, then layout, then manage review, then list review, then compare review or view review.

All our integration testing is being done manually. If we encounter any edge cases we will add an additional test to ensure it becomes fixed before release.
